

NEW SUPER-THRILLER FROM THE AUTHOR OF A FEW GOOD MEN*

The year is 1995. The pride of British-French aviation, the Concorde, a magnificent plane that flies at 1200 miles per hour some 60,000 feet in the sky, is making its way from Paris to New York. Passengers on the flight range from a famous Hollywood action hero to a highly decorated Air Force colonel.

Also on board are two Libyan terrorists who plan to take over the plane and detonate a nuclear device over Washington DC.

When the terrorists succeed in taking control of the airliner and killing the pilots, the heads of state of the U.S., France and Great Britain are soon involved in the incident and must decide on what action to take, including shooting the liner down.

On board the plane the passengers realize they are in serious danger of going down with the plane. Does the Hollywood action-hero live up to his screen image? Is the Air Force colonel, who is not a pilot, able to hatch a plot to thwart the terrorists? And what of the other passengers? Are they willing to fight the terrorists?

As the Concorde continues in its flight, the U.S. sends a super secret fighter whose mission is to shoot it down, under orders from the president. As the fighter pilot lines up the Concorde in his gun sight and squeezes the trigger, he gets a frantic message from the ground to abort – but it may be too late.

"Air France One" is a page turner from beginning to end, with twists and turns that will keep the reader on the edge of his seat with a "can't put it down" book. Interestingly, author Donald A. Gazzaniga wrote this story more than a decade before 9/11. Its similarities to that tragic event and the possibility of another make it even a more compelling read.
